NORTH, CENTRAL WEST HIT HARD BY TORNADOES

Blizzards in Northwest Cause Damage; Loss of Lives Reported

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Chicago, March 29.—Nine persons are dead, property damage is heavy and scores of towns and cities in the northwest, central west and Mississippi Valley are isolated today, the result of tornadoes, blizzards and storms yesterday.

Heavy rain falls accompanied by gales struck points in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas yesterday, causing eight deaths in Shawnee, Oklahoma. A boy was killed by lightning at Goffs, Kas.

Thousands of dollars damage was done to property and wire facilities. Every house in Crisfield, Kansas, was reported destroyed by the wind. Damage to crops is feared in South Dakota and Minnesota where temperatures fell 16 degrees to below freezing in a raging blizzard that brought snow blocked roads and hampered telephones.

Wire Service Hampered.
Passengers on a bus traveling toward Minneapolis, Minn., were forced to spend the night at Waverly, Minn., after their vehicle went off a curve when the driver was unable to see the road, buried in the snow.

A severe electrical storm in the lower Mississippi valley severed wire connection between points in Arkansas, southwest Missouri, Kentucky, southern Illinois and Tennessee. Serious damage to telephone and telegraph wires, lighting and power plants was reported in western Arkansas and communication south and west of Memphis was difficult.

Chicago and St. Louis experienced trouble with wires.
Numerous automobile and street car accidents occurred in Chicago due to blinding rain, but no deaths resulted.

At Alton, Ill., one person was injured and several business buildings were unroofed.

ALTON REPORTS DAMAGE.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Alton, Ill., March 29.—Alton suffered probably $100,000 damage from a tornado which passed over the business district of the city last night about 9:30 o'clock. It covered a narrow path. One man, James Logan, was hurt by a tree falling on him as he was driving in his automobile. He will recover.

In the downtown business district roofs were lifted off the Alton Hardware Co., the Sessal Store, the John Snyder & Co. store building, all in the business district and the Grand theater roof was damaged. A heavy rain caused much damage to stocks in the buildings which were unroofed.

Several hundred houses were damaged, garages and other outbuildings were carried long distances and some of them vanished completely. Porches were torn off houses, chimneys demolished, electric lighting and telephone systems were wrecked.

One of the heaviest losses to the city was from destruction of trees on the streets and in the parks. Rock Spring Park suffered heavily.

THREE DEAD IN MISSOURI.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Charleston, Mo., March 29.—Three persons were killed, 15 injured and miles of telephone wires and other property damaged in a wind storm which swept through southeastern Missouri this morning.

EX-GOV. DENEEN TO SPEAK HERE NEXT THURSDAY

Candidate for U. S. Senator to Present His Plea in Lee Co.

Atty. William J. Mathews of Chicago announces to the Telegraph that Ex-Governor Charles S. Deneen, candidate for U. S. Senator at the Republican primaries, will be in Dixon on Thursday afternoon and will address the people of Lee County at a big mass-meeting at the Dixon theater at 1:30 o'clock on Thursday.

Governor Deneen will leave Chicago at 10:30 Thursday morning and will arrive in Dixon at 1 p. m. going directly to the theater where he will be ready to start his meeting promptly at 1:30, returning to Chicago in the evening to fill speaking engagements there.

Atty. Mathews, formerly an instructor in the Dixon High School and now a prominent Chicago barrister, is a son-in-law of Federal Master-in-Chancery C. B. Morrison of Dixon and is well known here. He is making the arrangements for the Dixon meeting. The public is invited to attend and ladies are especially urged to be present.

Is Prominent Man.
Governor Deneen, who is opposing Senator Medill McCormick for the Senatorial nomination, will have a very interesting message to Dixon and Lee County people. His speech will be worth hearing. In view of his long public record, which includes eight years as Governor, in which he gave Illinois a splendid administration, and his record as prosecuting attorney for Cook county and as a member of the Illinois legislature, and the fact that he is a candidate for a high and important office, voters of Lee County should hear him, regardless of how they contemplate voting.

BLINDING RAIN CAUSED MISHAP LAST EVENING

Mrs. C. B. Schottenkirk
Met Tragic Death on Rochelle Corner

Mrs. Clara B. Schottenkirk, aged 65, widow of the late William B. Schottenkirk and for many years a resident north of Ashton, was struck and killed by an automobile, driven by Ralph Millotte of Rochelle, at the city hall corner on Fourth street in Rochelle at about 10 o'clock Friday evening, when she, with Mrs. Arthur Hayes, returning from a picture show and with their umbrella well down over their heads to protect them from the driving rain, stepped in front of the auto while crossing the street diagonally to the Schottenkirk home, which is across the street from the city hall.

Both ladies were knocked down, Mrs. Schottenkirk being rendered unconscious, while her companion escaped with minor injuries. The unconscious woman was hurried to the hospital, but she died before reaching the institution, where an examination showed her skull had been fractured.

Rain Blocked Vision
Mr. Millotte, driving his Buick coupe, was unable, because of the rain driving against the windshield, to see the ladies until they stepped directly in front of the car and then he was unable to avoid striking them, it is reported.

The inquest was held at Rochelle today, and the remains will be taken to Ashton for burial at Washington Grave cemetery, probably on Monday. Mrs. Schottenkirk and her husband lived for many years in LaPayette township, Ogle county, north of Ashton and had many friends in that vicinity, all of whom will mourn her tragic death. She is survived by two sons, Guy of Chicago and P. L. who resides on the old homestead north of Ashton.

Mine Superintendent Saved 125 Miners from Death in W. Va. Blast

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Bluefield, W. V., March 29.—President of mind of T. J. Dawson, who three weeks ago became superintendent of the Yukon-Pocahontas Coal Co. at Yukon, W. V., today is credited with the saving of the lives of 125 miners in mine number 1, when an explosion killed 26 men in number 2 mine.

When the blast came Supt. Dawson was near the entry leading between the two mines. He rushed into number 1 to warn the men there. Some of those workers were injured by the explosion.

All the bodies of the victims were recovered last night from the mine which was the scene of a similar disaster in 1919 when 18 men were killed. Company officials and mine inspectors believe the explosion was caused by head lamps of three miners who took a short cut through an abandoned working.

Township and Judicial Elections Next Tuesday to Be First of Several During Year—Where You Vote

The township and judicial elections, which will be held simultaneously at the various polling places in Lee county next Tuesday, will be the first of several plebiscites to be held during the year. The special judicial election is to choose a successor to Franklin J. Stransky, who resigned his office as Circuit Judge last fall. Attorney William Emerson of Oregon was nominated for the place by the Republican judicial convention and is unopposed for the post.

Because of the many removals of Dixon township voters since the last general election, with the resultant uncertainty of "Where do I vote?" the Telegraph publishes above a map showing the boundary lines of the various precincts, the polling places of which will be:
1st—Uhl carpenter shop, E. River street.
2nd—Ennis Hotel.
3rd—City Hall.
4th—Shaver Tire Shop.
5th—Rink's coal office.

7th—Cledon store building.
8th—Finkler store.
9th—Schuck Bros. store.
10th—Frazz garage.
11th—Raymond's coal office.

NOSE THAT SCENTED FORTUNE

It belonged to E. L. Doheny, central figure in the oil investigation. Other oil men declared that Doheny had a "nose for oil." He tells about that and other things about his career that lifted him from behind a butcher's counter to wealth and luxury in an exclusive story for the Dixon Telegraph. It starts Monday. His story is called:

British Hangman is Too Tender Hearted to Kill Own Poultry

By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, March 29.—John Ellis, official hangman of Great Britain, has resigned.

For 23 years he had held the position and dozens of notorious criminals passed through his hands to their doom.
His fee for dispatching a criminal was fifty shillings and another fifty shillings for "good conduct." Ellis is a breeder of poultry and it is said that he is so devoted to his birds that he gets a friend to wring the necks of those he wants to kill.

GLEE CLUB WILL SING CONCERT IN DIXON SUNDAY EVE

Coe College Club at Presbyterian Church Tomorrow Night.

Sunday morning Rev. Prentiss Hovey Case of the Presbyterian church is to preach upon a most unusual subject. He has taken as his theme, "What Church Would Christ Attend if He Spent Sunday in Dixon?" There is no doubt that Christ would attend some church. The record shows that he always attended the synagogue upon the Sabbath Day when he was on this earth. It would be impossible for Him to attend all churches so He would be obliged to make a choice. Which one? This theme will be discussed at the morning service at 10:45 at the Presbyterian church.

Glee Club at Night.
church there will be a sacred concert Sunday evening at the Presbyterian given by the Coe College Glee Club. Because the Glee Club cannot get here till evening the Vespers service will not be held Sunday and the service held at 7:30.

Coe College for years has had one of the best glee clubs in the west and has been noted for its Department of Music. The Presbyterian church is to be congratulated upon bringing it to Dixon.

There will, of course, be no admittance charge but on account of the expense of getting the club here it is hoped that the offering will be most liberal.

Securing this glee club is part of the effort being put forth by the Presbyterian church to serve the community, by securing at least once a month some attraction of unusual merit that will be a real treat to the people of Dixon.

The men of the club will be entertained Sunday night in the homes of the Presbyterian people. As the pastor will have to secure places for between twenty-five and thirty, any willing to take a guest for Sunday night and Monday at breakfast are asked to phone the pastor.

Wallace and I. Line for Drive Minority Party

BULLETIN.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 29.—Taking only a passing notice of H. M. Daugherty's disappearance from public life the senate's Daugherty investigating committee today tried to piece out details of one $100,000 deal and heard hints of another.

By H. L. Scaife, a former department of justice agent, the committee was told that investigation into the Mitsui aircraft case, in connection with which Gaston B. Means has testified Jess Smith received $100,000, was blocked by A. F. Meyers, special assistant to the attorney general after it had been discovered that the company owed the government many millions.

Scaife said he had been told by Guy D. Goff, then assistant attorney general, that Meyers received his appointment through former Attorney General George B. Wickersham whose law firm, he said, was retained by the Mitsui Co.

The references to the second transaction were made by Nicholas Clinch, a New York restaurant man, who testified that he had overheard a conversation in a hotel here about a "whisper" deal in which Mortimer got $100,000 from a party in Pittsburgh. He knew none of the details.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, March 29.—While drive to force retirement of another member of President Coolidge's cabinet—Secretary Mellon—is getting under way in the senate, the resignation of H. M. Daugherty as Attorney General has cast some doubt over the future course of the special inquiry into his conduct.

The status of the investigation was before the committee today. Chairman Brookhart said the "objects of the inquiry have been accomplished," through Mr. Daugherty's resignation but Senator Wheeler wanted to proceed.

The attack on Secretary Mellon is described by some as merely one step in well defined plans attributed to democrats and radical republicans for disintegrating the cabinet. Secretary Denby and Attorney General Daugherty left the cabinet within a few weeks. The gossip has it that Secretaries Wallace and Hoover are next in line after Mr. Mellon.

Attacked in Senate.
The Mellon attack reached concrete form during general discussion in the senate yesterday of Mr. Daugherty's retirement in which President Coolidge also came in for a share of the uncompromising comment. The executive was assailed for "delay and inaction" in a statement issued by Chairman of the democratic national committee.

Senator McKellar, democrat, Tenn., introduced a resolution for investigation of the legal qualifications of the treasury head by debate was delayed when Senator Wadsworth objected and forced it over until Monday.

To Probe His Business.
The resolution calls for an inquiry to determine whether the secretary "is concerned in carrying on business of trade or commerce," whether he owns any sea vessel "in whole or in part" and whether he is heading off in violation of statutes cited which prohibit maintenance of commercial connections by the government's fiscal agents.

Speculation as to Mr. Daugherty's successor slumbered down to Chief Justice A. E. Rugg of the Massachusetts supreme judicial court; H. F. Stone, dean of Columbia University School of Law; Governor Grosbeck of Michigan; Wm. S. Kenyon of Iowa and Secretary of State Hughes.

May Apply Brakes.
A disposition to apply the brakes to its public disclosures was apparent when the senate's Daugherty committee resumed inquiry into official acts of the former Attorney General.

Instead of examining confidential files of the justice department, in public, the committee decided to consider them in executive session.

CONTENT—

Sweet are the thoughts that savor of content—
The quiet mind is richer than a crown;

Sweet are the nights in careless slumber spent—
The poor estate scorns fortune's angry frown;

Such sweet content, such minds, such sleep, such bliss
Beggars enjoy, when princes oft do miss.

The homely house that harbors quiet rest,
The cottage that affords no pride or care,

The mean that greets with country music best,
The sweet consort of mirth and music's fare,

Obscured life sets down a type of bliss:
A mind content both crown and kingdom is.

—Robert Greene.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Water Ices.
Water ices are frozen in a freezer like ice cream, but the crank need not be turned constantly. A few turns every five minutes is enough.

Cut Flowers.
Heated air is injurious to cut flowers. They should be set in a cool place at night and in the morning be put in water up to their necks. If you float them in the bathtub it is an effective measure.

Chicken or Veal.
With delicately flavored meat, such as chicken or veal, do not serve strong vegetables like cabbage.

Lemon Sauce.
A good lemon sauce may be made by boiling the thinly shaved rind of a lemon in the water, straining it out before adding the water to the sugar, butter, cornstarch, sugar and lemon juice. Then add one well beaten egg after taking the sauce from the fire.

Salt Water.
Before making coleslaw soak the cabbage in cold salt water for half an hour.

Bad Odors.
Keep the plugs in your stationary tubs after using them and you will not get the bad odors from the pipes.

Entertained for Miss Mary Burgess

Misses Vivian Drew and Lucile Welch entertained fourteen girl friends at the latter's home Thursday evening for Miss Mary Burgess, whose engagement to Clinton Jones, was recently announced.

The party was a complete and happy surprise to Miss Burgess. During the evening a mock wedding was performed, the hostesses taking the parts of the bride and bridegroom and Miss Helen Hansen, acting as bridesmaid presented Miss Burgess with a number of beautiful linen and Turkish towels.

A three-course luncheon was served with decorations in pink and white, with miniature brides and bridegrooms as favors.

The guests departed after a most enjoyable evening extending their best wishes to Miss Burgess and their thanks and appreciation to the hostesses.

Loyal Members Attended Meeting

The rain yesterday afternoon did not prevent many gathering in the home of Mrs. F. W. Klossowski, 803 Highland avenue, for the Lenten meeting of the Southeast Group of the Sunshine Class, St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Mrs. Ellen Rosbrook sang two solos, "Because His Name is Jesus" and "Jesus and His Love." Handel's "Largo" and the transcription of "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" by Chas. D. Blake, were used as piano prelude and postlude at the meeting.

Mrs. Klossowski, who is an interesting talker in either German or English, told a story of Paul Gerhardt, a German courtier who was dismissed on account of his religion and in 1656 wrote a beautiful hymn of trust while under the difficult circumstances of his exile. Later the king sent for him and restored his position. After the story, the hymn was sung by Mrs. Rosbrook and Miss Ethel Kay.

Hymns were sung by all, and there was a short Scripture reading and talk appropriate to the season, also prayer.

After the meeting, several remained for a chat with their hostess and more music.

Mr. Cramer is leasing his meat market and will go to take charge of one which he has purchased at Polo.

PERIOD FURNITURE

Some 3000 years ago, the Egyptians showed marked talent at furniture construction. The model shown is an ebony seat inlaid with ivory. Some legs and rails were turned as if by a modern lathe. Seats, like the above, were made of plated linen cord or tanned and dyed leather thrown over them.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

Editor: I wish to compliment Mr. Jeannet on his article, "From a Farmer."

I am pleased to know others have seen for themselves how badly this bluff road work has been carried on. I also understand some of these same men that have been a draw back to our getting results are interested in a view to benefit themselves.

I am going to do like a lot of other sensible voters think—vote for the man that circulated his petition first and took no chance. He stated through the columns of The Telegraph his intentions before he asked the support of the people. He said: "I am in this race for the people's interest and welfare and for good, smooth roads in traffic condition at all time and to have all danger points guarded—partiality omitted absolutely."

What else should we ask for and why should we not give him a chance to prove himself capable of distributing our tax money and constructing us better roads.

A Voter for the Best Man Always.

MANDELL VS. BERNSTEIN
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, March 29—Sammy Mandell, Rockford, will meet Jack Bernstein, New York, former junior light weight champion, in 12 rounds, no decision, in Louisville, Ky., May 16, the decision, in an agreement reached yesterday. Each must weigh 133 pounds.

Mandell held Bernstein to a 15 round draw in New York in January.

GOAT SLEUTH NEEDED.
Muskogee, Okla.—Muskogee's police force will be recruited from the farms if Chief Fisher carries out his threat made after several cops failed to solve a mystery in which a goat was central figure. A policeman, hearing smothered groans in a barn called for help. Nine cops came to the rescue, and then a billy goat marched out of the shadows. Fisher says "no goat would fool a country boy."

DO YOU BELIEVE IN LUCK?

A monkey almost strangled Cromwell to death when he was a baby in the cradle. For a few moments, until he was discovered and driven away, that ape held the destiny of nations in his hairy paws. How do you explain it? Luck? A matter of chance?

Important events of the world and our own lives often hinge on such petty little details that an observer is baffled to explain.

Napoleon might have won Waterloo if a rain had not mired his artillery.

Mahammed, pursued by enemies, hid in a cave in Mount Shur. A spider promptly spun a web across the cave's entrance. Seeing the web, the pursuers reasoned that no one could have entered without breaking the silken threads. They passed on. Mohammed escaped. That spider determined the religious belief of billions of people later. The same cave-spiderweb story, by the way, is told about other historical characters—borrowed from Mohammed.

If Cleopatra's nose had been shorter, the condition of the world would have been different. So wrote Pascal in his epigrams. Her beauty made her one of the most powerful women that ever lived.

A small boy in church, watching a chandelier swaying back and forth, conceived the idea of the pendulum.

Luther might have been a lawyer if a terrific rainstorm had not prevented him from keeping an appointment with a friend.

Giotto, one of the early Florentine painters, might have continued a shepherd boy if a sheep drawn by him on a stone had not happened to attract the attention of a great artist, Cimabue, who fired Giotto with ambition.

Nearly everybody believes in luck. If they didn't, games of chance like cards would be entirely displaced by games of skill like chess. Ambition is kept alive and nurtured by hope. And hope is lured on by a belief, whether admitted or denied, that luck will bring opportunity and fortune.

Luck, after all, is simply the popular way of expressing success or failure under the scientific laws of chance or probabilities. These laws are mathematical. Gamblers use them. Insurance rates are based on them.

But most of us cannot accept chance as a satisfactory explanation of such crucial incidents as baby Cromwell escaping death at the monkey's hands. Some prefer to believe in fatalism. Others are confident that the guiding hand of Providence is back of it all.

GENEROSITY TO A FORMER FOE.

"Sink without trace," was Germany's ruthless order in the war. The German submarine was directed without conscience or compunction. Women and children were victims of its stealthy torpedo. Non-combatants perished under fire from German ships. "Spurs versenkt!" a reign of terror on the high seas its object.

Recently the House of Representatives at Washington, putting aside party lines, adopted a resolution to appropriate $10,000,000 for the purchase of food for Germany's starving women and children. The Senate doubtless will agree.

Children went down on the torpedoed Lusitania. They perished in the bombarded cities of France and Belgium. They died for lack of nourishing food as the enemy's lines were pushed nearer Paris, and France and Belgium were bled white.

That was war—war at its wickedest.

Today one of Germany's conquerors pledges ten million dollars worth of foodstuffs to relieve those who always feel war the most, the women and children. It is not a case of making amends for anything unworthy in America's record in the war. The donors did not violate a rule of war, did not take a foot of German soil as the spoil of subjugation. It is a gift made in kindness and generosity to a former foe who was relentless.

Conscience for conscience—Germany with the Lusitania to contemplate, the United States its gift of ten million dollars in food. We think the people of this nation have the better of it.—Rockford Register-Gazette.

THE GRATEFUL CITIZEN.

In an era of tax-dodging, governmental criticism and ill-concealed distrust of American institutions, here is a refreshing incident:

Wesley Jordan, a farmer dying at the age of 75 in Lancaster, O., leaves a will providing that after the burial expenses are paid, the rest of his estate, amounting to $16,000, shall be converted into cash and paid over to the treasurer of the United States. That is to say, he gives all his property to the government, and through the government, to all of us.

Why does he do this curious thing? Not from a guilty conscience, as some cynic may think. He does it in fulfillment of a vow, made years ago, that some day he would pay the debt of gratitude he owed to the United States of America for the privilege of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness that he had enjoyed.

In the presence of such a proof of faith and gratitude, cynicism has no place. Perhaps it leaves most of us a little ashamed. It stirs patriotism anew. It makes us realize all at once that, whatever may be the defects of our governmental system or the weaknesses of those who administer it, the essentials of freedom and opportunity do abide.

YOU.

Half a ton of blood flows through your heart every hour, says Dr. Henderson, lecturing at Harvard Medical School.

This is a terrific amount of work for a delicate pump. It is obvious that life can be prolonged and health improved by getting plenty of sleep and lying down for 20 minutes or so in mid-day and early evening. When standing, our hearts pump the full height of the body. When reclining, strain is taken off the pump, blood flows like water through horizontal pipes.

SOONER.

The Senate has adopted the joint resolution for a constitutional amendment to have presidents inaugurated third Monday in January and Congress take office first Monday in January after election.

It's a sensible idea. Most important thing for the public to keep in mind is that a political party by our present system is free to tinker with the laws for several months after voters have repudiated it and elected the other party to power. That's a poor way to play political baseball. The quicker repudiated politicians are sent to the benches, the better.

FOREVER HE RUNS.

Another sure sign of spring—William Jennings Bryan, the hardy quadrennial, now 64 years old, announced that he would "consider the matter" if the Democrats decide to "draft" him as their presidential candidate.

He is receiving so many letters, urging him to run, that he has had to print a form letter to answer them. Neither party has a shrewder politician. He has manifested his shrewdness by his comparative silence in the last few years. As a candidate, he might "run" amazingly. He usually does.

A foreign visitor can not understand why American girls need to paint. Neither can a lot of Americans not girls.

TOM SIMS SAYS

Maybe the new truth serum would be good for the epidemic of hearings plaguing Washington now.

The tax return that most taxpayers are interested in is the return of 25 per cent of their income tax.

A three-tube set in South Africa picked up Schenectady, N. Y., so the natives may have sprained their tongues pronouncing it.

Being a presidential candidate is hard on your past life.

What the world needs is a good movie scandal to take the place in the papers used by Teapot Dome now.

We don't know much about a bee in a bonnet but a man usually thinks a woman with an Easter bonnet got stung.

Buying an auto is all right if you don't run into too many creditors.

Spring makes people lazy. The other seasons that make people lazy are summer, fall and winter.

It pays to be honest, and it costs.

Keeping a stove from smoking is easier than keeping a boy from smoking.

A big company is placing on the market a new oil which quiets engines. If successful it should be used by political machines.

NO. 13—THE FIERCE BEAR

"I'm going to eat you all up," came the fierce voice.

"I'm going to eat you all up," came the great big fierce voice again.

"Oh, please don't!" begged the duck, snapping her wooden bill up and down like scissors. "I-I never did anything to you, Mister Bear, did I?"

"No, ma'am," growled the bear. "You never did a thing to me, but that's no reason why I shouldn't eat you. I like ducks awfully and I'm hungry."

"Well, if you eat the duck first," whined the red rubber dog. "You won't be so hungry, Mister Bear. Perhaps you could wait until tomorrow to eat me."

"No, I couldn't," growled the bear's voice. (Nobody could see the bear, they could just hear him.) "Nobody else waits when there is food around, so why should I?"

"Oh, good, kind, lovely Mister Bear," wheedled the black patent-leather cat, "Surely by the time you have eaten the duck and the dog you will be so full you won't want me. I am as old and tough as all get out, and I'm sure you would break your teeth."

"Oh, go on," growled the bear. "I'm not good, kind, lovely Mister Bear at all. I'm a great big fierce ugly bear and I'm going to eat you all up. Grrr! Grrr!"

"But we never did anything to hurt you, Mister Bear," pleaded the three. "As though that made any difference!" scoffed the bear. "As though it did. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander, and if you can do the things you do, I guess I can, too."

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER

I wonder, little Marquis, if in your life you had your soul so bruised and your heart so broken that you felt all dead inside of you, and yet all the while you went about, doing your accustomed tasks, talking to your friends, smiling when they smiled, sympathizing with them in their troubles which seemed to you trivial, when compared to your own.

I keep telling myself that I am very foolish. I keep saying to myself what I said to Jack, which was to the effect that if a woman insisted upon the single standard she would never have a husband to make her miserable; but that didn't seem to help me one bit, little Marquis.

Jack tried to be so sweet to me, but every time he calls me "darling," every time he says some complimentary or caressing thing to me, the face of that pliant, clever little Frenchwoman rises up before me, and I know that everything he is saying to me now, he has said before to her.

phone and wanted to know if I were ill. I told her no, but I was coming down to see her as soon as possible. Ruth, who has a quick sense of understanding, did not say she was coming up to see me.

She knew something was bothering me, something I did not want to talk about to any one. Impulsively I said to her:

"Ruth, dear, I do not know what I would do without you. You are the one woman to whom I can say 'I do not want to see you or any one else' with the full knowledge that you will understand and leave me to work out by great problem alone, standing by ever ready to help me if I should ask for help."

"Some day I may tell you, dear, all that is troubling me. Until then will you please remember that I love you better than any other woman I know, and consider you my greatest friend."

And that blessed Ruth, little Marquis, answered:

"Yes, I am always here when you want me, for without you, dear, I do not think I could have gotten through my trouble, which was greater than anything that could come to you; for I know, Leslie, that Jack loves you devotedly."

Evidently there are some who do not understand that Card of Thanks run in a newspaper is purely a personal matter and not news, and consequently something for which a charge is made in all papers. Seventy-five cents is the minimum price in the Telegraph, so if those wishing a card run would send the money with copy it would save all further annoyance.

Ask some of your friends who own Buicks what they most admire in their cars. You will get a number of different answers. R. R. TIFFANY GOING STRONG FOR CONGRESS

Freeport Attorney Said to Be Leading in Field of Five Entrants for Seat of McKenzie.

R. R. Tiffany, Freeport attorney, who is making strong race for congress seat of John C. McKenzie, who is retiring.

Rockford Morning Star: Contest for the republican nomination for congressman to succeed John C. McKenzie, who is to retire from congress after a long tenure of office, the most notable achievement of which has been the Muscle Shoals bill, is waxing rather warm.

Five Candidates.

There are five candidates in the field with Reuben C. Tiffany of Freeport and S. W. Crowell of Oregon, said to be leading. The other candidates are William Johnson of Freeport, who has held a government position in Washington for the last 40 years and who is said to have been sent into the district as part of a plan laid by Congressman McKenzie to usher his secretary, Mr. Murray of Sterling, into the seat he has held so long. Mr. Murray has conducted an active candidacy, relying upon Congressman McKenzie's rip on the voters of the district to put him over. Mr. Rogers of Fulton is also a candidate.

Tiffany Capable.

Mr. Tiffany of Freeport is regarded as a very able attorney, a fine public speaker in the prime of life, well informed on public questions and eminently qualified to represent the district in congress admirably and make record in Washington. Mr. Crowell is regarded as a first-class man but Stephenson county republicans resent the ambitions of the Ogle county brothers. They cite the favors that party has already heaped upon that county and feel that Stephenson, in offering a nominee of such calibre as Mr. Tiffany, should receive Ogle county support.

Freeport Aroused.

Freeport men who are backing Mr. Tiffany say that Ogle county now has a United States senator, a supreme court justice and a circuit judge, and there are no hard feelings in Stephenson over that bountiful array of enforcements. But when it comes to wanting the congressman they feel moved to say: "For the love of Mike be reasonable."

Secretarial Succession.

It appears that Congressman McKenzie's effort to name his successor has not resulted as happily as expected. When he was speaking for himself things went along pretty well with him. He has been in public office for 20 years or more and people have become accustomed to him as a public figure, but they have rebelled at his introducing secretarial succession into the district.

The thirteenth district will see some stirring times during this week as Mr. Tiffany's friends insist that he must be chosen and are going to bat in the final days of the campaign with both fists clenching his banner.—Adv.

HANDLESS BILLIARD STAR

George (Handleless) Sutton, world famous billiard star, has returned to Dixon and will entertain local cue fans with exhibitions at the Brunswick billiard parlors Tuesday, April 1, at 4 and 8 o'clock p. m. Dixon cue fans seem ever ready to welcome this popular player as he always has something new with which to entertain the followers of the game. His latest stunt is to carom at the rate of 100 per minute, the fastest ever made on a billiard table. His records show he holds the world's high run at 18.2 balk line and a high run of 3009 at straight billiards and holds victories over every player in the game, including Willie Hoppe, present balk line champion. Sutton is a real optimist and poses sparkling wit; while ordinary persons would be continually bemoaning their fate, he has, after years of study and practice, been able to master a profession. His next adventure will be golf, and judging from his other achievements he will not be long in attaining great skill at this popular sport. Great interest has been aroused in Sutton's appearance here and capacity audiences are expected to witness both the afternoon and evening entertainments.

That Dixon Will Have a Memorial
of Which the City May Well be Proud
Is Now a Certainty

Sales have continued at a remarkable rate, which is assuring to us that the knowledge is general that there will be no extra space to offer after construction begins. Our sales have all been to the individual for his own needs and none to any with a speculative view, though of buildings of this character, such as have Chicago and St. Louis, space has trebled and quadrupled in value over a period of from five to ten years, and as our company is owning no space, we see no reason why it should not prove a profitable investment to local owners.

The law of percentage always operates, and the time of need for such draws one day nearer each twenty-four hours. The cost is moderate, and as measured to ground burial is even less by comparison, and the relief one feels at the knowledge that they are prepared, will more than recompense for the amount invested.

Mrs. Olmstead was at Rochelle less than a month ago to attend the burial service of her brother Robert Ellinwood, whose remains were brought from Cleveland, O. At that time Mrs. Olmstead was suffering from a severe cold, and for that reason returned to her home at once. After returning home the family moved into their new home which they built to replace the one destroyed by fire about a year ago.

Pneumonia developed about two weeks ago and Mrs. Olmstead's physique seemed unable to conquer the ravages of the disease. Mrs. Olmstead was the last surviving member of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Ellinwood, pioneer residents of Rochelle. Mr. Ellinwood was a music teacher and the children were given a liberal education, and all possessed unusual talent in music. Mrs. Grace (Ellinwood) Olmstead was born about fifty-five years ago. She attended the public schools of that city and Northwestern University. She was known as a beautiful contralto singer and in her work as the wife of an itinerant Methodist minister was very helpful being not only a talented singer but she was especially fitted for the duties of a pastor's wife. She gave pleasure to many audiences who listened to her sweet voice. Mrs. Olmstead leaves her husband and daughter Janet. Her sister, Mrs. Minnie Sheets wife of Rev. Frank Sheets passed away within the past decade; her brother, Charles a year ago and her brother, Robert, succumbed to pneumonia Feb. 20, 1924. Funeral services were held at Duncan, Miss., where burial also was made. Rev. Olmstead was pastor of the Franklin Grove Methodist church from 1885 to 1889. The sympathy of the entire community is with Rev. Olmstead and his daughter, Mrs. Lou Demler, and one grandson, Ernest Wray Demler.

MISS ALAS

BY DOUGLAS GRANT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sallie Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Five & Ten, quarrels with her policeman sweetheart, Michael Curtis. At night Sallie goes into the back yard to take down a washing for Ma Brennan, with whom Sallie reads each shakes the earth and something strikes Sallie a blow on the head.

When she regains consciousness the girl finds herself in strange surroundings, handsomely furnished. A French maid named Therese calls her Alva Copeland and Madame Copeland, a tall, richly gowned woman, claims her as her step-daughter.

Sallie meets Cousin Wheeler, who makes love to her. She resolves to solve the mystery and listens at the door of a room where a conference is taking place. She finds that she is being substituted for the real Alva Copeland, real victim of the wreck.

Michael Curtis calls at Ma Brennan's home and asks Ma many questions.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Let's see the card again, Ma, will you?" Mike asked. "I don't begrudge the poor girl anything but I'm curious about her slipping away like that. She was just a girl, wasn't she? Didn't I see she was young?"

Ma Brennan nodded. "She thought she was, from the silliness of her even in the blanket, an' though she tottered weak-like she was half runnin'."

Ma couldn't get in quick enough out of the horror of it all, an' small wonder. Nobody seen her go. The card is up there on the shelf in my sewing box, Michael, an' I can give her back her money. 'Twould be Sallie's wish, well I know."

"Miss Bertha Hosmer," Mike read. "This isn't a regular visiting card, Ma; it is just a cheap thing printed on one of those little hand presses like they have out at the amusement park. You'd hardly think a girl who would carry that could afford to throw a couple of fifty-dollar bills around so easy, and why do you suppose she didn't write a word of explanation on it or even her address?"

"What would she be writin' it with, the burnt end of a match?" Ma Brennan demanded. "Twice the only explanation I could make. Leavin' the card with the money showed that somebody'd been here an' paid for somethin', so that when I found the clothes gone I wouldn't think a thief had broke in."

"It's hard to tell the ways of Providence, Ma," he remarked. "There's little I can say to you to comfort you now, but you don't know what you have done for me to night, giving me this look of hair! How beautiful and bright it was, wasn't it! Almost too bright to be natural! If I hadn't known Sallie since she was a little girl I would have wondered if maybe she didn't touch it up."

"Take shame to yourself, Michael Curtis, for the thought!" Ma Brennan exclaimed in honest horror. Sallie would have cut it off first, an' well ye know it."

"I know that," he assented wistfully, and picked up his hat from a chair. "I've got to get on over to Headquarters now, Ma, and see the Chief. You'll try to get a little sleep and take care of yourself tomorrow in case I don't run in."

"You've not got to get back on the job again so soon?—I thought the Chief gave ye a couple of days more."

"It isn't certain. Something came up only tonight and I may have to go out of town again. I never can tell how long these trips will take, you know, and of course I can't write but I'll tell Jim Nolan to have his mother come over every day and see that you're not letting yourself break down. He came over to her chair and hung a boyishly affectionate arm about her shoulders. "Ma, I wish there was something I could say to you but—but I can't, only to beg you to be fine and brave, and bear up as well as Sallie herself would expect of you."

"I'll be all right, Michael, and it's good of you to be botherin' me! A sad old woman like me!" She reached up and patted his cheek. "You've your work and your life before you, and I've the fight with the railroad company and the insurance people to take up me mind so we'll just have to try to go on. I'll be missin' ye but wishin' ye luck if ye have to go."

He kissed her and not trusting himself to say any more, turned and went out past the dark little parlor to the front door. When he had closed it behind him he went slowly down the path to the gate and paused there leaning upon it and looking up and down the straggling lane.

At the right it terminated abruptly at the railroad bridge and only ash-heaps and grimy factories loomed beyond, but to the left after reaching the end of the row of little double houses it dwindled into a mere path skirting vacant lots and bogs to the suburban trolley line.

Mike thrust his hands in his pockets and with lowered head sauntered slowly in that direction. A few lamps still glimmered from the little houses but the ones at the end of the row were deserted and falling into decay and the winding path lay in dense darkness ahead.

After a quarter of a mile, however, the rows of lights marking the trolley line came into view and as the hum of an approaching car reached his ears Mike quickened his pace and finally broke into a run, swinging himself aboard the back platform just in the nick of time.

"Hello, George!" he exclaimed briskly. "You haven't got much of a load going into town to night?"

The lanky, rawboned conductor followed his glance into the interior of the car, where only a few workmen returning from suburban jobs slouched drowsily in the cross-seats and responded grimly:

"It's been busy enough these last few days, Sergeant! Folks from miles around piled in to see the wreck of the 'Arrow' and we had a time of handlin' the crowds. I tell you! Foremost thing ever hit Shafts town! Was you there?"

"Not when it happened," Mike lighted a cigaret but his hand trembled and he forbore to look downward at the cleared tracks gleaming below as they rattled over the railroad bridge. "Were you on that early shift Tuesday morning?"

"Just a shift here on the incoming trip, like we were now, when the crash come!" There was a touch of awe in the conductor's tone. "Pretty near broke every winder in the car and but the explosion followed and before we got up to the town square the glare back of us would've made you think Roundhouse Lane and all the factories near was gain up in smoke, too!"

"Bet you had a crowd when you started back," Mike observed.

"I'll say I did!" his companion acquiesced with emphasis as they sped on toward the lights of the town. "Lot of your boys from the station houses and all the volunteer firemen who couldn't get no hang on to the engines in time. They all got off, though, at the furthest end of the bridge and out on the meadows beyond Roundhouse Lane, just where I picked you up tonight! I got a fare of another sort; first one off the wreck, I guess."

"Injured?" Mike queried with assumed carelessness.

"Well, she limped, and she was shakin' so I could hardly help her aboard and to a seat. I was scared she'd topple over in a faint on my hands but she didn't; just sat there coveerin' her eyes as if to shut out the sight of what she'd been through."

"Well, maybe she was old?" suggested Mike tentatively.

"No, sirree!" the other retorted. "She was young and mighty pretty what you could see of her through that heavy brown veil she had on, but she only shook her head when I asked her if she'd been in the wreck, and was hurt. After a while, when we was gettin' into Kingsville she asked if we was goin' near any other railroad line runnin' into New York, so I put her down to Kingsville station, though she'd have a couple of hours to wait, and she was limpin' worse than ever."

"Guess you're right, George; she must have come from the wreck," Mike added. "Especially if she had any handbags or anything with her."

"Now I come to think of it she did have a bag—a black one, and real handsome, though the brown suit she was wearin' seemed to be kind of shabby. Gettin' off here, Sergeant? Ain't you goin' on to Headquarters?"

"No. Got to see Joe a minute." He waved a friendly hand as he swung off the step, leaped in front of a lone jitney and entered the corner drugstore. Hurrying to the prescription department at the rear, he waited until the baldheaded, bespectacled little man behind it had wrapped up a small box of powders for a fussy old lady and rung up the amount on the cash register.

"Hello, Joe?"

"Did you want to see me, Mike?" the baldheaded little man beamed expectantly upon him and lifted the leaf in the counter. "Come into the back room."

He was proud of the fact that the young sergeant considered him the best chemist in town and had helped him out on more than one case but now Mike laughed rather forcedly as he followed him into the musty little back room and shutting the door drew from the envelope the lock of curling, golden hair.

"Nothing of much importance, Joe. I'm just kind of suspicious about a certain lady and I thought I'd see what you thought of her hair."

"Humph!" Joe pushed his spectacles far down on his nose and examined the strand while Mike waited with tense nerves and pounding heart for the verdict. "Mighty pretty and fine as silk but it isn't natural. Shouldn't be surprised if it was light, anyway, but it's been touched up a mite; peroxide and then something to take the glitter off."

"You're sure of it, Joe?" Mike's voice was suddenly husky, and his eyes blurred but the chemist, intent upon his examination did not look up. "It's been bleached?"

"Not only that, but the curl's not natural, either. Look's as if she'd had one of those things they call a permanent wave put on it two or three months ago and it had commenced to come straight, but of course I couldn't tell how long 'ago unless I knew how close this was cut off to her head. She's had it bleached over again, though, since. Guess that's all I can tell you about it unless you care to leave it here—Why, Mike!"
